St. Joseph, about 1900

DOWNTOWN AREA AS PROPOSED — "Demodernization" plans for St. Joseph's downtown area will restore the scene to its 1850 counterpart, including big false store fronts, balconies, iron lace work, lanterns, carriage lamps, hitching racks and other 19th century decor. A museum is also planned for the ante-bellum parish library building.

Waterproof, La is in the Southern portion of Tansas Parish, La. It is 199 miles from New Orleans. During the era of the cotton plantations the population of the parish was 90% slaves. There were many dances in the parish's leading cities - Waterproof, Newellton and St. Joseph. There were few concerts given and few organized brass or string bands. Jazz music was first mentioned in the newspaper in 1921.

May 7 - The Ball, Wednesday Night

In response to an invitation sent us, we attended the ball given by the Tensas "rifles, at Masonic Hall, on the evening of the 4th. As we predicted last week, everyone who attended had an ice time, and to say that it was a success but faintly expressed it.

The band - Kaisers, from Natchez - came on the Rebstock, about 6:30 and about 9 p.m. the ladies and their escorts began to arrive, and despite the warmth of the evening, number of them were soon whirling in the dizzy mazes of the waltz. "From that time until the hour appointed for supper, the dancers held the floor, and "chased the giddy hours with flying fee" to the music of quadrille, heel and toe, the waltz and the Lancers.

The assemblage was the largest, we learn, of any that has attended a ball here during the season.

November 4 - Brass Band

We learn that the Waterproof Brass Band has organized a series of open-air concerts, in the form of night serenades to their friends in the several neighborhoods in the vicinity of the town. We understand the Lake St. Peter section is to be honored by a visit this week. these little impromptu affairs must be very enjoyable to all concerned, and when in the 'lone starry hours" our young bachelor friends are wakened from their visions of "star sweet face mid clouds of hair" by the soft strains of slow music, bearing many resplendent rays of multiplied happiness to their ears, they must fee - must feel-ah! Who can tell for music hath charms which few can resist, and as the immortal William Shakespeare has so truly said, he who has no music in his soul is as only for treason, stratagem and spoils.

August 25 - Serenade

On Friday evening the 24 inst., the woods and glades in the vicinity of Lake St. Peter were entertained to the sweet strains of music, as discoursed by the Waterproof Brass Band, the members of which, wishing to do honor to the highly poplar and esteemed High sheriff of our parish, W. C. Young, Esq., and his interesting family, assembled in front of his house and played several selections to their usual spirited and finished style. After playing, they were entertained at supper, gotten up in that excellent style for which Mrs. Young is so justly noted, and to which, after their ride from Waterproof, they did ample justice. After thanking their host and hostess for their kindness, the Band took leave of them and returned to Waterproof, which was reached about 2 o'clock Saturday morning, each and all well pleased with the good time they had had.

Surely were Lords Byron alive today and had been so fortunate as to be present at the dance given at the Masonic Hall in St. Joseph on Tuesday evening, he would have described this even t truly one of the most beautiful in the social life of our town-in line no less enchanting than his immortal verse above quoted, wit slight variation.

The dance was a brilliant success i every particular and unquestionably one of the most enjoyable events of its kind that has ever occurred in our town, and the perfect arrangement of its details reflects most creditably upon those who had its management in charge.

Bud Scot's renowned string band from Natchez discoursed the sweetest music, and inspired the entire assemblage with one thought so graphically expressed in the continuance of Byron's famous lines

"On with the dance! Let joy be unconfined
No sleep till or, when Youth and pleasure meet
To chase the glowing hours with flying feet."

Promptly at 10 o'clock the music began, and as the inspiring strains floated gently on the air, the couples gradually gathered on the polished floor and were soon lost in the music of the dance.

September 6 - Dance

As a fitting climax to the social festivities which usually enliven our town during the summer months, on0 last Thursday evening the young men of St. Joseph and vicinity gave what approved to be the most delightful "Bud" Scott dance ever given in our city. Having made preparations for it for some time previous, and the young people having invited their dancing friends from the surrounding towns, and the crowd which gathered, representing the society of Lake Providence, Tallulah, Winnsboro, Waterproof, Vidalia, Natchez and our own town, not to mention many dancers from throughout the rest of the parish, filled the lower floor of the Masonic Hall to overflowing, nearly two hundred people being present. Dancing began about 10 o'clock, and in spite of the warmness of the evening and the great crowd on the floor, "Home, Sweet Home" did not bring the pleasures to a close until the approach of dawn began to redden the eastern sky. Ice tea and sandwiches were served about midnight, and together with coffee were at the disposal of the dancers at their pleasure the rest of the night.

Almost every section of the parish was represented, while many visitors from afar graced the occasion with their presence. The attendance was so great that the Gazette found impossible to secure the names of all present, but it can be truly said that it was a gathering beyond the ordinary of beauty, grace and intelligence, and the occasion will long be remembered with the most pleasant recollections by those who were so fortunate as to be present. St. Joseph and vicinity were represented by Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Wimberly, of "Osceola," who were accompanied by Miss Anna Maude Van Hoose, Miss Normar Reiber and Mr. James Rowan, forming a most agreeable party, who motored the entire distance, possibly 120 miles, in Mr. Wimberly's car. The dance was given in the large and handsome pavilion erected on piling some distance out in the lake and which is screened on all sides, making an ideal pleasure resort. The building is lighted throughout with acetylene gas, and open to the four points of the compass, with magnificent, waxed floor, and comfortable rooms and board verandas, approaches the ideal of personal comfort as nearly as one could wish. The dance in question was truly a delightful affair, every minute of the entire night being filled with pleasure to the participants, who reveled in the dance to the music of Bud Scott's Band 'til then wee sing' hours. The St. Joseph party left Readland about 100 o'clock next morning stopping at Tallulah for dinner and way wide points for refreshments, and covered the entire distance in six hours, reaching St. Joseph at 4 p.m. bring home the most pleasant recollections of a most delights ending.

November 28 -

For some days this week our young people were actively engaged in making arrangements for a big bud Scott dance to be given on Wednesday evening at Newellton, and issued invitations to numbers of friends in this parish and elsewhere and the attendance was about the largest that we have ever seen at a similar affair in this town, and would have been much greater but for the unavoidable misconnection of trains at Ferriday due to the failure of the transfer to land at Vidalia on account of the heavy fog.

This connection your correspondent wishes to state that every means was exhausted by our people toward petting the land and the guests up from Natchez but despite every effort it was found impossible to obtain either special train or automobile service from Ferriday. However, determined that the affair should not be a failure and our people and their guests disappointed, the committee on arrangements secured Louis Smith's Band from St. Joseph, which proved a most acceptable substitution for Bud Scott and discoursed excellent music 'all night long, and dancing continued until the 'wee small hours.'

The refreshments for the occasion had been ordered from Natchez and like the band had failed to arrive, about our good ladies as usual proved equal to the occasion, and served on such short notice an elegant and most appetizing luncheon, which was enjoyed by everyone.

The attendance was so large that is quite impossible to mention all who were present, and it is sufficient to say that a larger and more representative gathering of our people has seldom if ever collected at old Murdoch Hall, famed for its many notable assemblages in the social history of our town and which have contributed so much to the pleasure of our people. Brilliantly illuminated and artistically decorated in honor of the occasion, the hall presented a most inviting appearance, but despite its unusual proportions standing room was at a premium, many being compelled to seek chairs to the broad veranda.

The dance was under the special arrangement of Mr. W. D. Martiniere, who is an acknowledged epicure in the promotion of such enterprises. The attendance was unusually large, many coming from a distance. Tallulah, St. Joseph and Waterproof were well represented, about 25 cars coming from these towns (railroad). The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion and bud Scott's Band never discoursed more inspiring music and the dance was kept up until the morning star lighted the way for the homeward bound. A more complete account of the dance will be given in our next paper.

May 1 - Dance

The dance given at old Murdoch Hall i this town on last Friday night was truly one of the most brilliant great events that has ever occurred in our town, and which has ever been noted for its hospitality and the scene of many social functions that have attracted interest both far and near and where have been gathered the elite of our parish, constituting an assemblage of society, culture and wealth flattering to any community.

Brilliantly illuminated, the waxed floor reflecting the swaying figures of the dancers, gently floating as it were though space to inspiring strains, the scene resembled fairy land, and 'soft eyes looked love to eyes which spoke again, and all went merry as a marriage bell.

The gathering was large and select and representative of widely separated communities but including only the highest types of citizenship.

The evening was truly most delightful every movement of which was enjoyed to the fullest extent by every attendant and will long be remembered by all who were fortunate enough to attend.

The dance music was furnished by the popular Bud Scott Band of Natchez, which is sufficient guarantee that this particular and important feature of the arrangements was well considered.

As the hours sped and the birth of a new day was announced the assemblage was regaled with light refreshments consisting of sandwiches and coffee, followed by delicious and refreshing ices.

The revelry was continued with unabated pleasure until the light of dawn, dispelling the gloomy darkness, heralded the coming of another day, and the pleasure seekers fade reluctant adieu to the scenes and friends that had made so abundantly for their enjoyment, and the Tango Ball had marked an epoch in the social history of or community, and set a new pace that will not be easy to attain by future endeavors.

Riverboats were popular in this era and an article about them is given below:

May 8 - Riverboats

There is a story about the "Prairie Belle," the Natchez' and the "Robert E. Lee,' say old river men that has never been told. It was the beginning of a quarrel among men, and found its way down to those who eventually owned the Lee and Natchez. It was one of the causes for the race between those two boats, the greatest ever run on any river.

The 'Movastar" and "Prairie Belle" were built for the New Orleans and Natchez trade. both were great steamers in their day, but the "Movastar" was the fastest. Time and time again they raced along the river, the "Movastar" always winning.

The captain of the "Prairie Belle" was a man of bull dog disposition. The night Jim Bludso "held her nozzle against the bank, till every galoot was ashore," was the last race these two steamers ran. The "Belle" burned in the bends just below Lake Pontchartrain, La., and the "Movstar" was later dismantled. Then came the great "Natchez" and the "Lee." Practically the same owners were interested in these steamers.

The hatred kindled over the loss of the "Prairie Belle" grew in the hearts of those men, and rankled until they fought it out squarely and on the same plan.

Following the river race, the Natchez was re-entered in the New Orleans and Vicksburg trade. She was a big cotton carrier, often going into New Orleans with nothing visible but her spars, smoke stacks and pilot-house .

The last trip was to Lake Pontchartrain, La., after cotton. While running at full head of steam she struck a sunken snag in the big bend below Lake Pontchartrain and sank i a deep hole, not far from where the "Prairie Belle" was burned.

The dance of Tuesday night was well attended; seating capacity being absolutely at a premium, and the floor was crowded, the door receipts meeting happiest expectation.
